MAYOR, KEVIN SMITH

We are so grateful to those who made Ivins Heritage Days a great success this past month. Thank you to the many volunteers and participants! We are fortunate to have these opportunities to get together and celebrate the past as we look forward to a bright future.

A great man once said that, "Yes, we should count our blessings, but we should also make them count." I hope we recognize and never forget those who came before us. We are blessed by their sacrifice and also by those who currently serve and help in our community. Let's continue to make those blessings count by being good citizens and neighbors.

Let's make this the best October yet as we enjoy the cooler weather, the beautiful fall colors; and notice the good all around us!

Joint City Council Work Meeting with Santa Clara @ Ivins Center Street Fire Station - October 22, 2026

The Maltese Cross

The story behind the fire service's most enduring symbol — and why it anchors the Ivins City Fire Station Renovation fundraiser logo.

It's the instantly recognizable symbol of the fire service.

You'll see it on firefighters' helmets and their trucks. It's on their badges and their gear. And you may find a firefighter with the symbol tattooed on their body. It's a point of pride and a permanent reminder of the service and sacrifice the job requires.

It's the Maltese Cross.

Eight distinct points highlight the cross, each representing a virtue firefighters live by: loyalty, gallantry, observation, tact, perseverance, sympathy, explicitness and dexterity.

So, what is the Maltese Cross, and how did it come to be associated with the fire service? It's an incredible story, spanning centuries and weaving together themes of war and bravery, charity and humanity.

And, of course, fire.

From the Crusades to the Battlefield

The original symbol is believed to have first appeared during the Crusades, after a group of monks was forced to take up arms in defense of the sick and wounded pilgrims in their care. Over time, they evolved into an armed military order known as the Knights Hospitallers, also called the Order of St. John.

The Knights Hospitallers eventually settled in the Maltese Islands in the mid-sixteenth century. By this time, the knights had adopted the cross to recognize — and avoid mistakenly attacking — their own brethren on the battlefield.

The story grew during a legendary battle in which the knights' enemies doused them with naphtha and other flammable liquids, then set them ablaze.

Rather than retreat, the knights fought through the flames in a heroic effort to save and protect their comrades.

They became firefighters.

Our fundraiser logo, built around the Maltese Cross at our Chief Cazier's request.

A Second Cross: St. Florian

The Maltese cross isn't the only cross linked to firefighting. Saint Florian is a venerated Catholic saint and the patron saint of firefighters — his story was covered in more depth in the FFAM magazine's May 2021 issue on International Firefighters Day, but it's worth a brief recap here.

Legend holds that during his life, St. Florian extinguished a massive fire using only a single bucket of water, saving an entire village from ruin. For that act, along with his other protective deeds and his eventual martyrdom, he was canonized as a saint.

His legacy lives on in the St. Florian cross, described as having four triangular arms of equal length, rounded at each end and tapering toward the center.

The classic four-arm, eight-point shape of the American fire service cross

From New York to Every Firehouse in America

The first known connection between the Maltese Cross and the fire service appeared in New York in 1865, when the FDNY began using the symbol on its badges.

There's no surviving record of exactly why the department chose it, but many believe the connection came from those same eight virtues shared by the knights and firefighters alike.

The symbol has become a fire department tradition, often decorated with axes, ladders, hydrants and other tools of the trade. It's a universal sign of dignity, honor and courage for the countless men and women who dedicate their lives to the fire service.

But while the symbol has ancient roots, its modern form is uniquely tied to the American fire service.

Today, when the fire service refers to the Maltese cross, it usually means this distinctly American design — sometimes called the Firefighters' Cross. Like other historic cross symbols, it has four arms and eight points, but it's distinguished by the curved arch between each point.

Oral tradition holds that the rounded edges, or "bumps," on the ends of the cross represent unfolded angel wings — a nod both to the angels believed to protect firefighters in their dangerous work, and to firefighters themselves as guardian angels to the citizens they protect from fire and disaster.

Why It's on Our Logo

Whatever its exact origin, the meaning is the same: placing others' safety before your own and protecting life and property above all else. Those are the values and traditions the Maltese cross has come to represent for the American fire service — and they're exactly why our Chief Cazier chose to put it at the center of our fundraiser logo.

We want to offer gratitude to Ivins City's own Kaitlynn Krauss for the beautiful and meaningful design she created.

This design, incorporated into all our fundraising ideas, carries forward centuries of that same promise: loyalty, gallantry, observation, tact, perseverance, sympathy, explicitness and dexterity, in service of our neighbors. When you support this fundraiser, you're not just funding new gear or equipment — you're helping carry that legacy forward, one more chapter in a story that started with monks on a battlefield and continues today with the men and women who wear this cross on their coats, their badges and their skin.

The Park on Main Street: A Youth-Driven Community Park Reimagining

By Lauren Christensen and The Up & Atom Co-Op Group

What if a neighborhood park tragedy could lead to a community transformation and a triumph led by some of our smallest but most determined Ivins City community members? That is the vision behind what is currently Mojave Estates Park on south Main street. This park renovation proposal is a community-driven project being developed by local youth, Ivins City, and community supporters.

The idea began with students of the local homeschool community who have been using this park space over the past five years as an outdoor classroom. Learning new sports, doing science experiments and gathering to celebrate and learn. These kids wanted to imagine what this neighborhood park could become after it had burnt down over three years ago. Their vision goes beyond a traditional playground, with ideas for an outdoor classroom in the form of a small covered amphitheater, nature walk, drinking fountain, entrepreneurial market stands, local art showcase, and open spaces where people of all ages can play, learn, create, and connect.

The students recently presented their ideas to the Ivins City Council and community members, generating excitement and support for continuing to develop the concept. Ivins City has offered support with planning, labor, and resources, while Ivins Inspired is helping the students and community navigate grants, networking, budgeting, and other steps needed to move the vision forward.

The project has already received its first grant: $2,500 from the Social Connection Learning Collaborative and Community Grant with Get Healthy Utah, which will help fund entrepreneurial stands, park renderings, and a videographer to help share the vision with the community. Community members have also expressed interest in donating toward the park rebuild.

For the kids involved, those developments have made the project feel like their dreams are becoming a reality.

When asked how she felt hearing that the first grant had been received and that community members were already eager to contribute, Hazel C. (11 y/o) said, "I got really excited! I love the idea of having this new park and I hope that it will bring people together!"

Fourteen-year-old Scarlet C. shared a similar sentiment: "I can't wait for the park to be rebuilt so that the community can have a great place to learn and grow together."

For some students, the enthusiasm is a little more personal. Eleven-year-old Brisban C. is already looking forward to the upcoming market: "I am excited for our market day in November so I can sell my salsa to my friends and neighbors."

And for Emma A. (10 y/o) a neighbor and friend to the co-op, the motivation is simple: "I'm really excited for it because I want a park!"

Another student is especially hopeful about keeping the already existing grass area. Peter B. 8 y/o: "I am most excited about having the big giant grass field because I love running around and making up things of my own."

What's Next?

The community will have an opportunity to get involved during an upcoming Holiday Youth Market at the park on November 21st. Local youth entrepreneurs will sell handmade goods, food, treats, and other holiday items. Vendors will have the option to keep their proceeds or donate a portion of them toward the park project.

CONTINUE

Residents are encouraged to come enjoy and will also be able to learn more about the developing plans, see park renderings, and share their own ideas for what would make this space meaningful to the Ivins community.

The park on main is still taking shape, and community input and support will be an important part of the process. What began as an idea from local kids is becoming an opportunity for an entire community to imagine, build, and grow together. If you would like to show your support please join us November 21st and/or Feel free to donate using the QR code listed below. We are already seeing great support from generous donors including former Mayor Hart who made a $50 donation at our booth at Heritage Days, as well as an anonymous donor who has offered to match up to $2,000 in donations! Thank you so much to these donors and we are excited to see this dream become a reality.

Celebrating The History of Ivins

Thank you to everyone who stopped by the Ivins Historical Society displays during Heritage Days. We enjoyed visiting with residents and sharing photographs, stories, and objects that help tell the history of Ivins. Our displays continue to grow as families share more of their history with us. A special thank you to the families and Historical Society members who helped put everything together. The displays, video, and slides turned out beautifully.

We are also working on identifying original Ivins homesites and develop plaques to mark them. We hope these markers will help residents and visitors see where early families lived and learn about the people who helped build our community.

Halloween in Early Ivins

Halloween in Ivins did not always mean going door to door for candy. Verlene Tobler, born in 1921, remembered, "On Halloween we never went trick or treating, but just went from house to house in our costumes to "scare" people, supposedly."

Some Halloween visitors had tricks of their own. Martha Empey Hafen recalled that Gerald, Kay, and Kendle once tipped over the outdoor toilet at Milo's home. They tried the same trick at Ernest Reber's house, but Ernie was inside the outhouse at the time. As Martha put it, "Boy was he mad!"

For a later generation, visiting homes included a little performance. Emma Hafen Fife remembered that adults would ask children to recite a poem or rhyme, tell a story, or sing a song before giving them homemade treats or sometimes coins.

Another recollection describes Halloween at school. Children arrived in costumes and masks, hoping their teachers could not identify them. They played a game like musical chairs in the gym. Children without a chair went onstage for the teachers to guess who they were. Anyone who remained unidentified through the game won a prize.

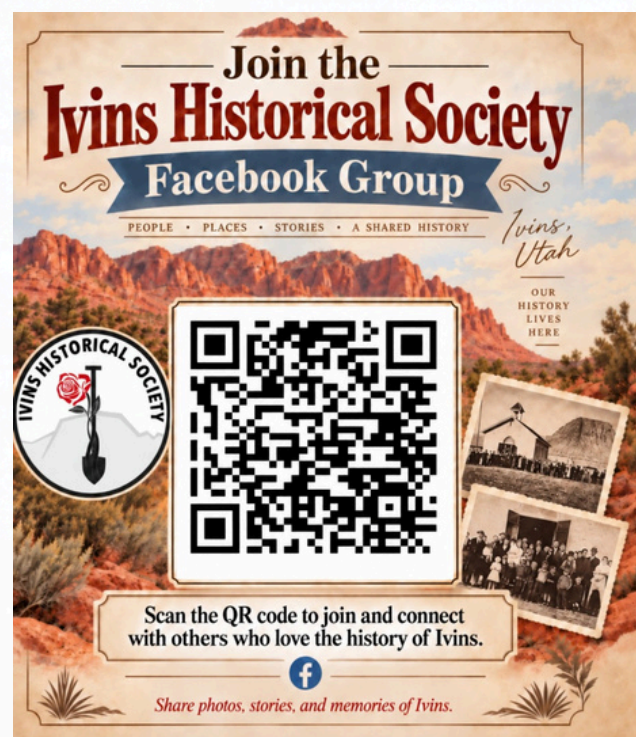

Whether they were trying to scare a neighbor, earn a homemade treat, or fool a teacher, Ivins children found plenty of ways to enjoy Halloween.

Public Safety

HALLOWEEN SAFETY TIPS

Halloween is a fun time for our families and neighbors to get out and enjoy the evening together. The SCI Police Department asks everyone to take a few simple precautions to help keep the night safe:

STAY VISIBLE

Carry a flashlight or use reflective tape on costumes to ensure visibility.

BE AWARE

Use sidewalks when available and watch for traffic, uneven surfaces, and other hazards.

CHOOSE SAFE COSTUMES

Avoid long, trailing fabric and ensure masks do not obstruct vision.

DRIVE CAREFULLY

Slow down and watch for trick-or-treaters, especially in residential neighborhoods.

CHECK TREATS

Parents should inspect all candy and treats before children consume them.

STAY TOGETHER

Young children should always be accompanied by a responsible adult.

From all of us at the SCI Police Department to your family, have a fun, safe, and happy Halloween!

MACKENZIE REID

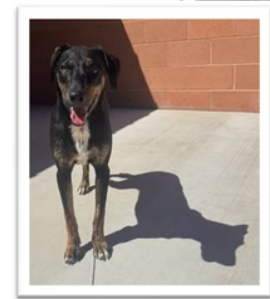

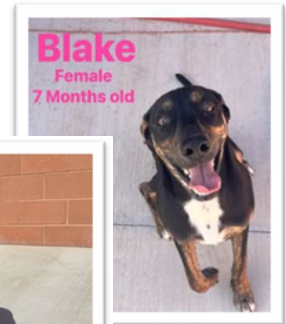

SAY HELLO TO BLAKE!

Blake is a 7-month-old hound mix who is looking for a place to call home. She has been at the shelter for 47 days.

She's young and still learning about the world around her. Like any young pup, she will need to learn some basic obedience, including potty training.

She can be a little skittish around new people and new things, so she'll need someone willing, patient, and able to work with her. With the right person by her side, we know she has so much potential. Once she's comfortable, Blake is incredibly sweet, cuddly, and playful. She would make a loyal and loving adventure buddy.

PET OF THE MONTH

INKAS - Ivins No Kill Animal Supporters

Go to: www.inkas4pets.org for more information or to donate

Ivins No-Kill Animal Supporters (INKAS) is a 501(c)3 organization and a Registered Utah Charity. It was founded in 2010 with the mission of providing support to Ivins Animal Shelter and Adoption Center, now the Santa Clara-Ivins Animal Shelter. In 2006, our shelter became the first no-kill municipal shelter in the state of Utah. Maintaining a no-kill shelter, as opposed to one that euthanizes animals after a set period of time, is more costly because the animal's needs must be met at the shelter until they are reclaimed by their owners, adopted, or transferred to an animal rescue organization. Through a memorandum of understanding with Ivins City, INKAS provides support through veterinary care, specialty foods, and other needed supplies. Funds are gained through the donations of many generous animal lovers by donating on our website.
